The final settlement value is equal to the cumulative value of ordinary dividends declared by the relevant company without an adjustment for withholding taxes, tax credits or tax repayments. Declared ordinary dividends are taken into account if their ex-date falls on or between, the start and end date of the one year reference period of the relevant expiry. For non-US underlyings, the reference period starts on the day following the third Friday in December and ends on the third Friday in June (the expiry date) half year later or December (the expiry date) one year later. For US underlyings, the reference period starts on the day following the third Friday in January (the expiry date) one year later. 2. Dividends that are declared special or extraordinary by the issuer are normally excluded. 3. If a dividend is distributed in the form of shares only and if this is regarded as ordinary dividend, the cash equivalent is taken into account. If no cash value is declared by the issuer, the cash value will be determined based on the official closing price of the share on the relevant cash market on the cum-day (the business day prior to the ex-dividend date). 4. If shareholders may choose between cash or shares, the cash option is chosen. 5. A dividend future refers to a dividend that is paid in the same currency as the trading currency of the dividend future. If a dividend amount is only available in a currency that deviates from the futures contract currency, will be used ("equivalent dividend amount") using the reference rate for the cumday (the business day prior to the ex-date). In principle the reference rate, but before the SSDF expiry date, the equivalent dividend amount is nony available in a currency that deviates from the futures SSDF expiry date, the equivalent dividend amount is not known before the SSDF expiry date, the converted dividend amount will be recalculated | | |
