

Norcod appoints Stian Vollan-Hansen as new CFO

Trondheim, Norway – Norcod, the leading pioneer in cod farming, has appointed Stian Vollan-Hansen as its new Chief Financial Officer (CFO) from 1 December 2024. Vollan-Hansen (34) is based in Trondheim and brings with him valuable experience from financial management and business development through nine years in various positions at Entro, a leading energy consultancy agency, most recently as CFO.

Vollan-Hansen holds a master's degree in economics from NTNU Business School and has gained broad experience in financial planning, reporting, M&A activities, strategy, and business development.

“We are delighted to welcome Stian to the Norcod team. I am confident that his experience, knowledge and positive energy will be a valuable contribution to the company in our efforts to make industrial scale cod farming a commercial success,” says Christian Riber, CEO of Norcod.

“I am very excited to join Norcod as their new CFO and look forward to being a part of the company's journey. Their future is bright as the world needs more healthy and sustainable seafood, and Norcod has come a far way in pioneering cod farming on an industrial scale. I look forward to contributing to making this economically sustainable and realizing the huge potential I see for Norcod and cod farming.”

Trym Are Sivertsen will serve as Norcod's interim CFO until Vollan-Hansen assumes the role of CFO from 1 December 2024.
